Hello. It's time to admit Obamacare has failed. For three years, the President has taken out his pencil and eraser and rewritten or delayed his law on the fly when it's not working. He did that today with insurance companies. But that's too little, too late for the people who have received four million cancellation notices under the law. Let's scrap the partisan approach and start over with something bipartisan that helps the uninsured without ruining everything that works in our health care system. I talked about this on the Senate floor this afternoon. You can read or watch my speech here and here.
